IPIS LATEST REPORTS

From conflict resources to sustainable development: Memorandum by Fatal Transactions on the European Union's contribution to natural resource management in Africa

(July 2008 – Fatal Transactions - IPIS)

<http://www.ipisresearch.be/corporate-social-responsibility.php>

IPIS drafted this publication for Fatal Transactions. The Memorandum looks specifically at the European Commission's contribution to a sustainable exploitation of natural resources in Africa and a sustainable supply chain. It also assesses its approach on conflict resources. The paper provides an analysis of the Commission's trade policy, development cooperation, foreign and security policy, cooperation under bilateral and multilateral agreements, humanitarian aid and financial assistance. It also takes a look at the Commission's view on integrating and implementing external actions in its internal policies (e.g. energy and environment) in order to promote a sustainable management of natural resources abroad.

Mineral resource extraction in Africa: Continuity and shifts, lessons – Abstract.

(18/10/2008 – AfricaFiles)

<http://www.africafiles.org/article.asp?ID=19213>

Throughout the processes of globalisation African governments have participated mainly as the receivers of terms and conditions of trade and investment that prioritise the interests of transnational capital and external markets above that of Africa, her peoples, and the environment. More than ever broad alliances that do not compromise the strength of Africa's regional and national groups of communities and NGOs must be nurtured and extended.

Of cabbages and kings.

(21/10/2008 – Miningmx)

<http://www.miningmx.com/grnbk08/836768.htm>

The ruling theory is that it's getting easier to invest in Africa. There are less conflicts and more democracies than before – 34 to be exact – and the demand for commodities has made mining firms not only more desirous of investing in Africa but willing to raise their risk tolerance to do so. But Africa is still no bed of roses.

AU says Africa firm on effective use of mineral resources.

<http://www.afriquenligne.fr/au-says-africa-firm-on-effective-use-of-mineral-resources-2008101713945.html>

Addressing the first AU ministerial conference on mineral resources late Thursday, AU Commissioner for Trade and Industry, Elisabeth Tankeu, said that despite the recent improvement in Africa's growth performance, poverty was deepening in many of the African countries. Africa is determined to utilise its mineral wealth in building a prosperous future for its peoples and the mining companies operating on the continent should get the message, she stated.

<http://in.reuters.com/article/domesticNews/idINLF45673020081016>

Financing for mining projects in Africa, where minerals exports have helped drive strong economic growth, could slow down and miners there face tougher credit terms as a result of the global banking crisis.

DRC

Law of unintended consequences.

(21/10/2008 – Miningmx)

<http://www.miningmx.com/grnbk08/836848.htm>

The DRC is its mining industry's flagship basket case. Though among Africa's richest sources of minerals, the legacy of its civil war has earned it the sobriquet "paradox of plenty" – little of its minerals wealth has been converted into lasting national wealth.

Results of a review of mining contracts in DRC will only be announced after a new government to be formed by the prime minister takes charge of the dossier, a senior official said on Wednesday. Prime Minister Adolphe Muzito, who was appointed on Friday, is due to form a new cabinet in the coming days. This is likely to mean further delay to the contracts review that was scheduled to end on Wednesday, Oct. 15.
